

May 2020 - update

Hi

Its hard to believe its 2 months since I set up this page. I hope you have found the information on the site useful, whatever your working background.

As restrictions start to relax everyone's thoughts are focussed on supporting the 'return to work', albeit not yet 'normal' work, for staff at all levels in organisations.

Having coached more than 40 leaders at all levels in different agencies during the pandemic, I am aware of how differently people have responded to the circumstances of home working and the juggling of responsibilities for family.

To read the full article on returning to work please click here to access it and a series of other blogs I have written for use with clients regarding various aspects of working over the past couple of months.

Stay safe.
