

Success is never Accidental

Every great leader has strategies for success. One of the easiest and smartest ways to be successful is to study other successful people and copy what they do. As a graduate of many leadership modules at Success Resources International, I have had the opportunity to attend Mega Success in Los Angeles for the past three years. At this event, hosted by the JT Foxx organisation, leaders from all walks of life, Sports, Film Industry, Real Estate and Education are interviewed by delegates so that we can better understand their success strategies.

It will be no surprise that the themes are pretty consistent and include some, or all of the following.

- Believe in yourself and the service you are providing
- Do whatever it takes
- Start the day early and keep going until you get what you need to do done
- Be disciplined with your time – prioritise the things that need your attention and delegate the rest
- Set and maintain high standards
- Master the art of listening to understand
- Employ coaches and mentors who will help you to advance in your chosen area

In this series of short articles, I will share three key success strategies from each of a number of extraordinarily successful individuals.

So, watch out for the success strategies of

- Steadman Graham
- Hugh Hilton
- Brooke Shields
- Maura Forbes

Another common thing that successful people do is to surround themselves with successful people.

The benefit of this event is the opportunity to meet new thought leaders and catch up with existing colleagues. All of us recognize the importance of sharing ideas and learning from each other.

Successful people think differently, use their time more effectively and in the words of Hugh Hilton, do everything 'better, faster and more efficiently'.

Take a moment to identify leaders you want to emulate and go seek them out, either in person or by studying their materials.

Success is never accidental – identify and strengthen your personal success strategies

For more information on leadership skills please visit my website at www.lynnepeyton.com/core